"We are pleased to host our second annual Health and Wellness Fair and to announce that Jane Barton will be our guest speaker," said Amy Dickinson, Accessible Systems Director of Marketing. "Jane is a passionate speaker, writer and listener and will be presenting 'A Humorous Look at Aging'." We are also pleased to join our industry partners to provide an educational and fun event for members of the senior community."

Representatives from Home Care Assistance will be available to discuss the advantages of aging in place and staying in the comfort of home with the support of a professionally trained caregiver.

With an expertise in holistic care, Home Care Assistance educates its caregivers and the seniors they serve on maintaining a healthy mind, body and spirit with age through its proprietary approach to care, the Balanced Care Method™. The Method is based on scientific studies of lifestyle factors linked to longevity including healthy diet, physical activity, socialization, calmness and maintaining a sense of purpose.

"Seniors and their families are often overwhelmed as they navigate the labyrinth of options available for long-term care," said Pete Lane, owner of Home Care Assistance of Centennial. "We are pleased to partner with Accessible Systems at their 2nd annual event to help educate the public on the choices available to them. I am looking forward to sharing information about our unique Cognitive Therapeutics Method™, a proprietary cognitive stimulation program. Our caregivers use this fun, activities-based program to engage clients exhibiting symptoms of dementia or other brain-related illnesses and possibly help delay cognitive decline."
