Home Care Assistance Partners with Independent Living

Senior care leader, Home Care Assistance, is partnering with new company, Independent Living, by offering a pilot program of their services to a selection of interested clients

(Palo Alto, CA – August 24, 2015) - Home Care Assistance, a leading provider of non-medical, in-home senior care, is thrilled to announce its partnership with Independent Living, a company that consults older adults on modifications they can make to help them age in their own homes successfully. Independent Living will be offering a pilot program of their services to Home Care Assistance clients in Palo Alto, CA and surrounding areas.

“With a mission to change the way the world ages by helping seniors live well in their own homes, we couldn’t be more excited to partner with Independent Living,” said Kathy Johnson, PhD, Founder and CEO of Home Care Assistance. “Independent Living shows tremendous promise in helping older adults age in place by offering each family customized solutions to allow individuals to age at home successfully.”

Independent Living is also eager to begin the pilot with Home Care Assistance. Christian Howell, Founder, said, “Independent Living is thrilled to announce this partnership with Home Care Assistance. As a national leader in home care for seniors, Home Care Assistance shares in our goal to help older adults remain in their homes safely and independently.”

Independent Living makes the complex problem of aging in place simple for the millions of older Americans who want to remain in their homes. Independent Living’s proprietary assessment process matches personalized home modifications, assistive health technologies, and connectivity solutions with the needs of each customer. Independent Living’s team of experts recommends, implements, and supports the right solutions to minimize risks in the home. For more information, visit www.indliv.org.
