Home Care Assistance Denver to Host Aging In Place Workshop

The “Aging in Place” event will be held January 27, 2016 from 6-8 p.m. at the Eugene Fields Library 810 S. University Blvd in Denver, CO and is open to the public free of charge

(Denver, CO – January 26, 2016) Home Care Assistance Denver, a leading provider of non-medical, in-home care for seniors, is co-hosting an Aging in Place workshop with Carol Core of CarolCARE on Wednesday, January 27th, at the Eugene Fields Library from 6-8pm. The library is located at 810 S. University Blvd in Denver, CO. This event is free, open to the public and will offer valuable information and resources for family caregivers. Light refreshments will be served.

“We are very excited to be hosting this event because there needs to be a paradigm shift in the way society views aging,” said Samantha Co-Owner of Home Care Assistance Denver. “We see this workshop as a means to this end in jumpstarting that shift and instilling family caregivers with hope, resources and the support needed to help their loved ones age in place safely while still finding time for themselves.”

The ‘Aging In Place’ workshop will include the following:

- What is Home Care?
- 10 Sanity Saving Tips for Caregivers
- How to ask for help and find resources
- Five reasons quality in-home care can improve your loved ones quality of life while saving money on eldercare costs

The events co-host, Carol Core of CarolCARE, spent more than 12 years as a non-paid family caregiver and leveraged her personal expertise and knowledge to create CarolCARE – a firm dedicated to offering support, empowerment and relief to non-paid family caregivers. Carol also authored the book 50 Sanity Saving Tips for Caregivers, You Don’t Have to Kill Yourself to Keep Them Alive.
